Nally Smith College of Music is proud to announce that, beginning Fall 2011, the college has been included in the Minnesota Postsecondary Enrollment Options (PSEO) Program.

PSEO is a statewide program that allows students in their junior or senior years of high school to earn college credit while completing high school requirements.

PSEO is open to area junior and senior high school students. Each eligible college or university that offers PSEO sets its own requirements for enrollment into the program. Students may take PSEO courses on a full or part-time basis. For full-time PSEO students who begin in their junior year, it is possible to graduate from high school with enough college credits for an associate’s degree. Students taking part in PSEO either part- or full-time gain experience and credit in a college environment, become better prepared for further study, and save money on tuition in the future.

PSEO AT McNALLY SMITH

High school juniors and seniors enrolling through PSEO at McNally Smith College of Music are expected to perform academically and musically at a collegiate level. For music performance students, program admission requires an audition on the student’s primary instrument, and other programs require a strong academic background and the ability to succeed at the postsecondary level.

For students interested in enrolling through PSEO at McNally Smith, this is an exceptional opportunity to perform and study music, music business, the liberal arts, and other fields at a level not offered in a high school setting. With many high schools’ budgets strained and the arts suffering as a result, McNally Smith provides music students with experienced faculty, instruction, and facilities not available elsewhere.

Enrollment through the PSEO program is offered at no cost to students or parents, and is contingent only on the student’s academic and musical ability, and potential for success in college-level coursework based on the application and audition process.
